A corrigendum on Debating E-voting throughout Europe: constitutional structures, parties' concepts and Europeans' perceptions

by Borucki, I., and Hartleb, F. (2023). Front. Polit. Sci. 5:982558. doi: 10.3389/fpos.2023.982558

In the published article, Figure 1 was mistakenly not included in the publication. The missing Figure and its caption appear below:

In the published article Figure 1 is now shown as Figure 2 and an in text citation has been added. A correction has been made to Results, paragraph 8. This sentence previously stated:

“Thus, two scenarios were tested with logistic regressions where needed variables were available: First, we set preferences for E-voting were set as the dependent variable, putting in being an expat as the independent variable, together with the country of residency, the available technology (landline, mobile phone, and Internet), and sociodemographics (sex, age, and education).”

The corrected sentence appears below:

“Thus, two scenarios were tested with logistic regressions where needed variables were available (see Figures 2A–C): First, we set preferences for E-voting were set as the dependent variable, putting in being an expat as the independent variable, together with the country of residency, the available technology (landline, mobile phone, and Internet), and sociodemographics (sex, age, and education).”

The authors apologize for this error and state that this does not change the scientific conclusions of the article in any way. The original article has been updated.
